

Weekly Natural Gas Storage Report

for the week ending July 30, 2021 | Release Date: August 5, 2021

16 Bcf Natural Gas Storage Injection: Less than Expectations

Natural gas prices on Thursday initially climbed to a 2½ year high on concerns that storage will not be sufficient during the coming winter season. Then the EIA reported Thursday that storage weekly injection was only +13 Bcf, below expectations of +18 bcf but the price reaction was muted, eventually trading down through the rest of the trading day. Storage at 2,727 Bcf is now 547 Bcf less than storage was last year at this time and 206 Bcf below the 5-year average; the growing deficient is usually supportive of prices.
